EDMONTON WILL HAVE SOBER CHRISTMAS; LAST NIGHT CELLS AT POLICE STATION WERE EMPTY

Some Liquor is Being Imported Into City From Outside Point and Illegally Disposed of, Resulting in Number of Raids — Coyotes Are Becoming Bold of Late, and Are Frequently Seen in the City in Wet Snow Hours.

Edmonton is having a sober Christmas. So far as open drunkenness is concerned, it is practically unknown. Last night, in connection with previous holidays, there were no arrests for drunkenness in the streets. This was a great difference from last year, when there was quite a number of arrests, but not in connection with Christmas. It appears to be the impression of liquor that the city from outside points and the majority department of the city police have made a number of raids in the result several persons will be arrested as a result of being in possession of liquor and in violation of the game in an unauthorized manner.

THE SOCIAL SIDE OF CITY LIFE

PERSONALS, MEETINGS, CLUB ACTIVITIES, WEDDINGS AND SOCIAL EVENTS

Congratulations go out to Lord Donald Brown and to Mrs. Brown on the arrival of a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Jenkins have come to Alta to spend Christmas with friends.

All the college boys are home, and all the ladies are exchanging after in accordance with the time-honored custom. Christmas trees, all the same old story and so they all say, will have the same old spirit, for the merry given, for children, to throw off that which is evil and bad, and after joining in prayers for the reign of peace at a time not too far distant, they just become absorbed with the spirit of Santa Claus. And here's luck to them!

At the regular weekly meeting of the St. John Ambulance Working Committee, the following resolution was passed: "Resolved, that we, the members of St. John Ambulance Working Committee, do not endorse the motion passed by the executive of the Local Council. We feel confidence in our government, that they will require nothing from us that is not necessary for the winning of this war, and we women of Canada will not be haggard if, consequently, it is necessary to that end."

The many friends of Miss Grace Gibson, McCauley school, will regret to hear that she arrived Friday evening of the outbreak of her father in London, Ontario. Among others who mourn her loss are daughter, John, 12 years of age, and two sons, William and Ralph, both of whom are serving with the Canadian Corps in France.

Miss P. B. Thompson of Calgary, is a guest over Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McKee, 2001 13th road.

The Daily Poem

CHRISTMAS AT THE FARM.

If I were a poet and could write in useful rhyme
While the garden words the poets use as rhyme
I would prepared to tell you of the happy, happy time
When I was a boy, I learned about my father's farm.

I could tell you of the old familiar scene of long ago
Which time now change can cause us to forget
The lark and the meadow, and the corn in a row,
For the memories of my childhood haunt me yet.

I could tell you of my brothers, and my little sister, too,
Of those days of the joyous days of yore,
Of those we used to talk about and things we used to do,
In the days that will return again no more.

Of all the happy seasons we children grew up on
The one whose coming brought us such delight
Was the merry, merry Christmas time,
When the snow was on the trees and the stockings full of toys.

And of Christmas dinner—Delicious—
A sumptuous feast—
No one could match it at all of our appetite increased,
Until there was no room for any more.

Oh, I wish that it were possible to turn
Old time around
By some enchantment, or some magic charm,
And if a little boy again, might hear the welcome sound
That summoned us to dinner at the farm.

I have feasted at great banquets
Of the rarest dishes skillful cooks have made,
But the banquet provided never tasted half so good
As the dinner in the farmhouse on Christmas Day.

—Frank Reed.

Out of Over One Hundred Thousand Guesses One of Our Customers Wins the Beautiful Bulletin Free Automobile

Master Russell Sandison: We heartily congratulate you on being the winner of The Bulletin Christmas Auto Contest. You were the lucky one in thousands. You were one of Forty-three people who estimated the correct number of auto parts in the jar. You were one of five customers of The Mahar Coal Co. who made the right estimate. You were extremely lucky in having your name picked out of the hat of 43 names and being declared the winner. If luck did not play an important part in this contest, then there sure is no such a thing as luck. For whether you won the auto or not, it's sure good luck and good judgment to buy King Coal from the Mahar Coal Co.

News of the District

CHAILEY.

Bulletin Correspondence.

Still another Chaley boy has paid the supreme sacrifice. Wilson Chaley's name appearing on the casualty list as wounded and killed, killed in action. Also not yet confirmed in the district, but reported killed, is the name of Frank Chaley, his brother, being killed only a few short weeks ago. Also Robert Chaley, Wilson's brother, is reported as being wounded and taken German prisoner. The Chaleys are surely a fine family.

The wedding recently took place of memorization was held in Greenbush school house, on Wednesday evening, and was much enjoyed.

The various machinery agents collectors are paying us their annual visits, they are being smilingly received, and sent away for once rejoicing.

Chaley is coming up.

Threatening in the district is nearly completed. Shocking generally, most of us are much better off than at one time anticipated.

Fibreless for the coming year at the Christmas tree are coming fast and furious. A very large attendance is expected. Such performances help to bring out talent and who knows, but what amongst the debutantes may be picked out, one who may eventually become a shining light.

Mrs. L. C. Minard, who recently made a brave attempt to endure a two weeks' stay in the capital, returned yesterday, bristling down at the end of half the month. Ascertaining there was found very nice, but in a general way at this particular time, none of like cows, chickens, etc. Mrs. G. D. Chute, who accompanied her, may stay out her time.

The proprietors of the newly organized ranches in the district, from Ontario, are at this time, gone on, subjected with conditions and intend in the coming spring to go "back" and throw in the district "hang on to it."

An Easy Course.

(Established in Edmonton, 1884)

The management and staff of LA FLECHE BROS. wish you a Merry Christmas and a New Year full of Prosperity and Happiness.

La Fleche Bros

If you meet on the street today Mr. R. Sandison, of Edmonton, do not wish him "A Merry Christmas," or go out of your way to display any solicitude as to his welfare. That would merely be a superfluity of the most unnecessary kind, for he should be the happiest man in Edmonton today, and doubtless is. Let us introduce you to him as the proud winner of The Bulletin automobile in the famous automobile contest.

Everybody should know the details of the contest by this time, and yet it may be just as well to repeat them. Two months ago the Bulletin published two special pages of advertising submitted by Edmonton firms. At the same time a large glass jar containing a considerable number of automobile parts was placed in the Bulletin office window, the jar having previously been sealed. The conditions were that each customer of the firm advertising in this manner was entitled to make one estimate of the number of automobile parts for each dollar expended. This special advertising was continued in the columns of the Bulletin, at stated intervals, right up to Christmas, and the contest closed on Saturday night at eleven o'clock, when the last ballot was allowed to be cast. The grand prize was a McLaughlin automobile valued at $950.00. It was stipulated that should there be more than one correct ballot, such ballots would be placed in a hat, and the one first drawn would be declared the winner by the judges. In addition, the territory had been divided into four districts, and there were two Carolas as prizes in each district—eight Carolas in all, and therefore a total of nine prizes—surely a handsome inducement to the citizens of Edmonton and district to take part in a contest of this kind.

At the close of the contest it was found that approximately one hundred and ten thousand ballots had been cast, representing a total expenditure with the various firms taking part in the contest of about a quarter of a million dollars. No greater tribute could have been paid to the value of the Bulletin as an advertising medium. Throughout the contest the Bulletin office was inundated with callers seeking information about the matter, while on the last two or three days the scene at the Bulletin counter irresistibly reminded one of a popular bazaar sale.

The judges—Mayor Henry and G. L. P. Kirkpatrick, the latter the well-known manager of the Edmonton branch of the Imperial bank—started their work immediately the contest closed. It did not take very long to count the automobile parts. One by one they were tallied, very carefully so that there would be no mistakes, and it was found that the exact number was 1243. One interesting point of interest, perhaps, to some contestants was the fact that the parts included in the jar should be counted separately, instead of as one piece. This was the only thing that needed adjudication. All the rest was plain sailing.

ADDITIONAL PRIZES ARE TO BE AWARDED

In view of the fact that there were eight customers of the Boston store, and five customers of Anderson's grocery who estimated the correct number of parts in the jar, and yet did not figure in the prize list, the Bulletin has decided to offer two additional Carolas as prizes. The condition of this extra offer is that the names of the eight customers of the Boston Store who estimated the correct number, as per the judges' report, must be placed in a hat, the person whose name is first drawn out to be adjudged the winner. The same procedure must be followed in the case of the five customers of Anderson's grocery who also gave correct estimates. The person making the draw in each case may be nominated by Mr. Hart and Mr. Anderson respectively.

This came the huge task of checking the ballots. This occupied about five hours, each ballot being carefully examined, and afterwards just as carefully checked, so as to ensure that no mistakes be made. When the checking had been completed it was found that forty-three contestants had correctly estimated the right number. The estimates that were placed in the ballot box early in the contest were mostly below the right figure, the contestants evidently being misled by the few large parts in the jar. A continued study of the jar, however, revealed hundreds of smaller parts, such as washers, nuts and bolts, and even the tacks required for the upholstery, and just as much a part of a car as the engine. In consequence, some very high estimates were placed in the box during the late stages of the contest. One ballot, No. 2111, actually estimated the number of parts at 25,471,375, this being the highest recorded number. On the other hand, ballot No. 2388 estimated only one part, although how this estimate was arrived at, with several hundred parts in plain view, it is difficult to say.

The examination of the ballots revealed some curious delusions on the contest. One contestant had placed
